Please support this seamless bay area transportation bill. I am visually impaired and will retire in five years. After that, I intend to supplement my meager social security income with temporary work.

Work will likely take me all over the bay area and since I cannot drive, I need quality integrated public transportation to continue to help me be a taxpayer and contributing citizen.

The baby boomer population is aging, and many who could drive before won't be able to do so much longer. I have always depended on public transit, but you'll find for many seniors, this experience is new. The better our transit can become the more mobile, active and healthy our population will remain.

Right now medical costs are rising and seniors who sit at home are only going to become sicker and more need of government dollars to stay alive. Let's spend those dollars on keeping seniors out in the fresh air and active!
